To: The Co-Chairmen of the Tri-Level Conference and Ministers of Finance of Canada and the Provinces

The Tri-Level Task Force on Public Finance in Canada was established as a result of the consensus reached at the Tri-Level Conference held in Edmonton in the Autumn of 1973.

The Task Force, consisting of representatives from the federal, provincial and municipal governments, has held five meetings: on June 25, 1974, January 27, 1975, May 8, 1975, December 3, 1975 and February 9, 1976. At its first meeting the Task Force agreed to appoint a Project Director to plan and implement the programme of work prescribed by the Terms of Reference. At its third meeting "the Task Force agreed to the preparation of an Interim Report by December 1, 1975, to report on:

- (i) the development of a common data base for use in Tri-Level discussions. The data base will be developed primarily from existing Financial Management Statistics data and provide information as set out in Terms of Reference 3, for the years 1969/70 to 1974/75;
- (ii) the relative financial position of and fiscal relationships between federal, provincial and local governments, based on a trend analysis of government revenues and expenditures and intergovernmental transfer payments, supplemented with descriptive information to the extent necessary and possible within time and budget constraints;
- (iii) an analysis of the finances of local governments in five or six selected urban regions (including at least one major complex region) and one or more special studies with emphasis on the role and incidence of property taxes;
- (iv) the disaggregation of federal and provincial expenditures on social services to the five or six selected urban regions;

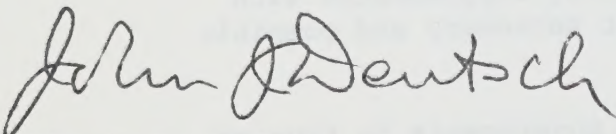

- (v) the disaggregation of federal and provincial personal income taxes to the five or six selected urban regions;
- (vi) proposals for further studies deemed necessary or desirable in the light of the Task Force's mandate and given the (preliminary) findings reported in the Interim Report."

At its meeting on December 3, 1975 in Ottawa, the Task Force considered the first draft of the Interim Report which was prepared under the supervision of Mr. Eric C. Newman. Members of the Task Force suggested a number of changes and amendments which were incorporated into the second draft which was submitted at a meeting of the Task Force in Toronto on February 9, 1976.

At its meeting on February 9, the Task Force dealt with a number of further proposals for changes and amendments and agreed on the transmittal of the Report simultaneously to the Co-Chairmen of the Tri-Level Conference and the Ministers of Finance of Canada and the Provinces. The meeting on February 9 agreed that one additional study should be carried out by Mr. Newman and his staff: An Analysis of Long Term Debt. The study will be conducted within the limits of the presently available funds and will analyze the public debt situation as of March 31, 1975 for federal and provincial governments and as of December 31, 1974 for local governments. The Task Force decided to undertake no further work subject to specific instructions from the Co-Chairmen of the Tri-Level Conference and the Ministers of Finance.

Further, at its meeting on February 9, the Task Force recommended that the Interim Report as finally amended at that meeting be accepted as the final report of the Tri-Level Task Force on Public Finance. Accordingly, I transmit herewith the Report of the Tri-Level Task Force on Public Finance in Canada.

Respectfully submitted,

John J. Deutsch,
Chairman

Professor John J. Deutsch,
Chairman,
Tri-Level Task Force on Public Finance,
Queen's University,
Kingston, Ontario.

Dear Sir:

It is with pleasure that I present the first three volumes to the Tri-Level Task Force on Public Finance. These reports deal with all three levels of government and have been prepared with the objective of assisting the Tri-Level Task Force in its deliberations as well as to better identify those topics which may be expanded or introduced as studies of interest to all levels of government.

Volume I, entitled the Tri-Level Database, sets out extensive financial information of the three levels of government for the period 1969/70 to 1974/75.

Volume II consists of two separate studies. They are:

Trend Analysis of Government Finance

Disaggregation of Social Service Expenditures to Selected Urban Regions

Volume III is an appendix and consists of three special studies:

The Incidence of the Property Tax

Analysis of Local Government Finance in Five Urban Regions

Disaggregation of Personal Income Tax to
Selected Urban Regions

These studies were prepared in a relatively short period of time and while they could in most instances be studied deeper and expanded, this was not possible in the time available. Nevertheless, it is hoped that a great deal of information and thought have been brought forward which will be of assistance to the Tri-Level Task Force and can form the basis of future cooperative arrangements.

I wish to express a special and sincere word of appreciation to those who joined our staff as well as to those who did special studies on a consulting basis. Their knowledge and efforts have contributed to the quality and quantity of work prepared.

A particular word of appreciation should also go to Statistics Canada for the information, office space and assistance they provided us.

We will continue with our work and will proceed to complete our Public Debt assignment. We will of course be pleased to undertake other assignments which we are asked to commence.

Yours sincerely,

INTRODUCTION TO THE DATABASE

The financial statistics which comprise the Tri-Level Database have been produced in accordance with the terms of reference agreed to by the Tri-Level Task Force on Public Finance in Canada at its meeting on May 8, 1975. The Database consists of the following:

(a) The revenue and expenditure of:

- (i) The Government of Canada
- (ii) Each provincial government
- (iii) Aggregations of all local governments in each province
- (iv) Consolidations of:
 - Each provincial government and its local governments
 - All provincial and local governments
 - The federal and all provincial and local governments

(b) General and specific purpose intergovernmental transfers as reported by both the transferor and transferee governments;

for the fiscal years 1969/70 to 1974/75 inclusive. (All statistics are in millions of dollars rounded to one decimal place.)

In addition to absolute dollar values, revenue and expenditure statistics showing percentage and per capita data are also included. Population figures used are those shown in the July, 1975 issue of the Statistics Canada publication "Quarterly Estimates of Population for Canada and Provinces" (Cat. 91-001) which covers all the years in the Database.

It is important to note that the Database, in accordance with the terms of reference, does not include data for the Northwest Territories, the Yukon Territory, nor for their local governments. All these governments are reflected only to the extent of their transactions with other Canadian governments, i.e. primarily as recipients of transfers from the Government of Canada.

Problems in the Production of Public Finance Statistics

The universe covered by the Database comprises the federal government, the ten provincial governments and the roughly 4,500 municipalities, 900 local school authorities and several hundred special purpose authorities (e.g. regional libraries, health units, conservation authorities, etc.) which together form local government. Each government includes not only its departmental core but also all those subordinate entities (boards, commissions, etc.) it establishes to discharge specific aspects of its responsibilities. While the number of provincial governments has remained unchanged since 1949 there are a few changes each year in the numbers of local governments. The numbers of subordinate entities, however, grow so rapidly as to make a precise specification of the total components of the government universe extremely difficult.

In addition to the complexities created by this large and continuously changing government universe, any study of public finance in Canada has to cope with the wide variations in form, contents and, above all, in concepts displayed in the financial reports of governments. While there are three basic types of government accounting systems - the 'modified-cash' approach of the federal and provincial governments, the fund accounting systems used principally at the local level, and the quasi-commercial systems used by some agencies - the variations as between individual governments are very pronounced and should be kept in mind when comparisons are made.

A third major problem area is that governments generally report on their financial transactions on a yearly basis, but there is no common fiscal year for all governments in Canada. Thus, while the federal and provincial governments use the April 1 - March 31 year, some of their agencies and most local governments use the calendar year while a few agencies and some municipalities and local school authorities have other fiscal years. Moreover, the financial reports of governments may appear at any time from a month or so to a year or more after the end of the fiscal period to which they relate while their formats and contents may change radically from one year to another, frequently with little or no indication of the relationships between the new and the old reports.

The need for a uniform statistical system into which this heterogeneous mass of data can be translated for study and analysis is obvious. Two such systems have, in fact, been developed by Statistics Canada - the System of National Accounts and the Canadian System of Government Financial Management Statistics. The former, designed primarily for economic analysis, seeks to integrate the transactions of the complete economy into a single financial statistical system of which government forms one sector. The latter attempts to show the principal aspects of the involvement of government in the provision of goods and services.¹ The Task Force selected the Financial Management System (hereinafter referred to as FMS) as the most appropriate for its purposes, but also approved the use of the System of National Accounts for long term trend analysis. Differences between the two systems are described in the introduction to the Task Force special study on trend analysis.

The Financial Management System

Development of FMS began with the First Dominion-Provincial Conference on Provincial Finance Statistics held in December, 1933 but publications describing the system were confined to its municipal applications until the advent of 'The Canadian System of Government Financial Management Statistics' in 1972. Obviously, any user of the Tri-Level Database should be thoroughly familiar with the concepts and classifications of FMS as set out in that publication. However, even this familiarity with the literature may not fully alert a user, particularly one familiar with the accounting and financial reporting systems of a single government or level of government, to the differences between the published financial statements of governments and FMS statistics. It appears worthwhile, therefore, to draw attention to some of the more significant of these differences by showing how FMS deals with the problems of producing public finance statistics outlined earlier. As a necessary corollary these solutions will be evaluated to ensure that a user is made aware of the relative adequacy of the Database and its components for the studies or analyses he is undertaking.

The FMS Solutions

(a) Structural Complexity

A large Canadian government - federal, provincial or municipal - may exhibit a very complex structure. Attached to the central 'core', which is usually organized into departments, are numerous corporations, boards, commissions and other entities established for various purposes and operating with varying degrees of autonomy. In addition, individual entities may, in turn, spawn further subordinate bodies and so forth. Furthermore, as the organization of all these entities and their inter-relationships is usually peculiar to each government, intergovernmental comparisons or aggregations relying solely on the individual reports of each of the entities are difficult.

On examination, however, it can be said that even the most complex of these organizations is carrying out two main tasks:

- (i) The provision of goods and services generally recognized as appropriate for governments, and
- (ii) The provision of goods and services which could be, and in other jurisdictions are, provided by business enterprises.

Recognition of this dichotomy is basic to the FMS approach to the problem of structural complexity. In essence this approach is to review the organization and operations of all the components of a government, to decide in the light of established criteria which are to be classified as government enterprises and to consolidate all the rest into a single organism called 'General Government'. The Tri-Level Database is concerned with this general government universe and the government enterprise universe is reflected only to the extent of its financial transactions with general government.

It should be noted that the Tri-Level Database follows the Statistics Canada identification of government enterprises with one exception. Statistics Canada classifies certain provincial housing corporations as enterprises and the remainder as special funds within general government. In the interests of uniformity and comparability all these entities are classified to general government in the Database. (Note, however, that CMHC remains a government enterprise.)

The Tri-Level Task Force is also of the opinion that public transit systems should no longer be classified as government enterprises. However, the attempt to incorporate these entities into general government was defeated by lack of complete data, the suspect quality of some of the available data and the lack of resources to rectify the foregoing and to convert information compiled in accordance with commercial accounting practices into financial management statistics.

(b) Diversity of Accounting Systems

In essence the FMS solution to this problem has been to adopt the current federal-provincial systems, with some significant modifications, and to convert data produced under the fund accounting and quasi-commercial systems to this standard system. Thus the consolidation of government entities into a single 'general government' is paralleled by the consolidation of the various sets of accounts into a single financial statistical system. The most significant aspects of this system for the Tri-Level Database are as follows:

- (i) Revenue and expenditure relate to the transactions of a single year only and those of prior or succeeding years are excluded. Thus refunds of revenue and recoveries of expenditure of prior years are not incorporated in the data nor are transactions involving reserves.
- (ii) As far as possible all amounts are reported gross and any netting is, consequently, reserved.
- (iii) In addition to the customary proceeds from taxation, sales or goods (including fixed assets) and services, receipts from privileges, licenses, permits, fines and penalties, returns from investments and transfers from other levels of government revenue also includes what are usually referred to as non-budgetary items. Chief among these are employer and employee contributions to universal pension plans and to government-operated social insurance programs together with employer and employee contributions to government-operated non-trusteed pension plans (except contributions to such plans by the operating government). However, capital and/or loan repayments to government and any borrowings made by government are not classified as revenue.

- (iv) Expenditure includes all outlays made to acquire goods (including capital assets) and services and to provide services including transfers to other governments. Conversely, expenditure excludes retirement of indebtedness, loans, advances and other investments.

Assessment of the Financial Management System

The chief merit of FMS is that it is at present the only system which depicts the financial activities relative to the functions discharged of any and all Canadian governments in terms of data which are consistent and compatible to a high degree. The system achieves this through the use of concepts and conventions which to a greater or lesser degree depart from actual reports. Consequently it is most successful when its statistics are used in large aggregations for broad analyses. As more and more detail is introduced and as the attempt is made to relate the statistics to particular transactions in the everyday financial operations of an individual government, the system becomes significantly less valuable as an analytical tool.

In particular, because the concepts and conventions of FMS depart from standard government accounting practices most widely at the local government level, the picture presented by FMS statistics of local government operations may differ significantly from the perceptions of those operations held by the governments themselves. Thus, for example, since local governments are generally forbidden by law to incur surpluses or deficits in any given year, the consolidated revenues and expenditures of all local governments in, say, 1974 should be roughly in balance. Since this can be established from their individual accounting statements it can be safely assumed that a consolidation of all these statements would present the same picture. However, reference to the Database shows that in 1974 local governments had an apparent deficit of $757.2 million, while the National Income and Expenditure Accounts present an even 'worse' picture with a 'deficit' of $933 million.

Each of these apparently conflicting views is valid once their very different perspectives are taken into account. The 'fund accounting' balance says that local governments, combining revenue acquired in 1974 with amounts set aside in previous years plus receipts from borrowings to finance capital expenditures, met all their current expenditure requirements, repaid any debts that fell due in that year, financed their capital expenditures and were able to set aside further amounts to meet future requirements. (Note, however, that they financed the bulk of their capital expenditures by borrowings to be repaid in future years.)

The FMS statistics state that, ignoring amounts acquired and set aside in previous years or reserved in the current year for future use and treating repayments in 1974 of the principal of debts incurred in prior years as balance sheet rather than expenditure transactions, gross current and capital expenditures of local governments exceeded their gross revenues by $757.2 million.

The data for the local government sub-sector in the National Income and Expenditure Accounts show that while local government current revenue exceeded current expenditure by $1,161 million, gross fixed capital formation (roughly, capital expenditures less purchases of land and used fixed assets) of $2,094 million resulted in the deficit of $933 million.

The real point to be made here is not the 'truth' of the picture presented by any of these systems but that, depending on the requirements of the user, one system rather than the others is appropriate, while no system by itself will meet all the needs of all the users.

However, while FMS remains the most appropriate system for the analysis in financial terms of the operations of all three levels of government in Canada, a number of very important qualifications must be borne in mind when using the statistics, particularly for comparative purposes.

If the levels of government are each considered in isolation then, in comparing provinces or local governments with each other, account must be taken of differences such as the following:

- (a) Assignment of responsibilities. While all provinces constitutionally have the same responsibilities, some discharge particular functions themselves while others assign them, wholly or in part, to local governments or even to non-government entities. Thus in seven provinces primary and secondary education is provided by local governments and financed partly through local taxation. In Prince Edward Island, however, although education remains a local government function it is financed entirely by the province.

In New Brunswick primary and secondary education is almost entirely a provincial function while in Newfoundland a significant segment is discharged by non-government entities which, however, are mainly funded by the provincial government.

- (b) Changes in assignment of responsibilities. This problem of lack of inter-provincial comparability arising from differences in assignment of responsibilities as between levels of government is further complicated by the major changes in these assignments which take place from time to time. In the period covered by the Database only one major change occurred - the restructuring of local government in Prince Edward Island. The assumption by the provincial government of the responsibility for health, welfare, and the administration of justice, the reorganization of the local education system and its financing and the entry of the province into the field of real property taxation means that there is an abrupt break in the time series at both the provincial and local levels in this province. Of course, here as in less far-reaching cases of reassignment of responsibilities, the consolidated provincial-local statistics are not subject to such discontinuities.
- (c) Differences in the universes. Again at the provincial and local levels comparability is impaired by differences in the universes. For example, expenditures on health at the local level in Saskatchewan and, to a lesser extent, in the other western provinces are relatively much higher than in the rest of the country due to the many municipally-owned hospitals in those provinces. Thus the rough comparability of expenditures on hospitals which exists at the provincial level disappears at the local level since only municipally-owned hospitals are included in that universe.

- (d) Changes and differences in methods of financing. Year-to-year comparability is also impaired by wide differences between the way in which different governments finance similar programs and by the continual major and minor changes which take place at all levels. These changes often result from the introduction of new programs, e.g. the federal government's response to the major increases in the international price of oil which commenced late in 1973. Thus the Oil Export Tax which was introduced late in 1973/74 produced 1.1% of federal gross general revenue in that year and 5.3% in 1974/75, while subsidies to importers were 0.6% and 3.8% respectively of gross general expenditure in those years. Again, the retention by Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia of health insurance premiums as a significant element in financing health care expenditures while other provinces have either never used or have gradually phased out this method produces distortions in the year-to-year picture of provincial financing. The differences in federal-provincial financial relationships resulting from Quebec's opting out of major shared cost programs are too well known to require further comment here.

- (e) Levels of service. It is possible for an analyst well aware of the details to allow for the effects of all the foregoing factors in his studies. Nevertheless, the validity of comparisons that he might then make may still be seriously impaired by a further factor which cannot at present be quantified but which appears to be of major significance. This is 'levels of service', that is the quantity and quality of each particular service provided. Normally, it might be expected that the more elaborate the service the greater the expenditure required to meet it. Assuming, therefore, that other significant differences have been eliminated or offset, relatively greater expenditure by one government on a particular service might be assumed to be occasioned by higher levels of service. Unfortunately, since most government services cannot at present be quantified, valid comparisons based on the amounts of services delivered, let alone the efficiency with which these services are delivered and their effectiveness on delivery, cannot be made. Even where quantification is possible, studies indicate that unit costs are influenced by a large number of variables and that little or no data is available on many of these.

Having expressed all these cautions and reservations regarding the use of FMS for detailed intergovernmental comparisons, it is worth emphasizing that the Database contains the best statistics on Canadian government finance now available. These statistics are most suitable for analyzing the financial involvement of government in the provision of services to the public and for depicting general variations in the financial activities and situations of individual governments and groups of governments. At the same time, users of the data will no doubt wish to supplement them to meet their particular requirements.

Construction of the Database

(a) Sources

The primary sources for the information contained in the Tables of the Database are the following publications of the Public Finance Division of Statistics Canada:

- Federal Government Finance (Cat. 68-211) 1969-1973
- Provincial Government Finance - Revenue and Expenditure (Cat. 68-207) 1969-1972
- Provincial Government Finance - Revenue and Expenditure (Estimates) (Cat. 68-205) 1973-1974
- Local Government Finance (Cat. 68-204) 1969-1972
- Local Government Finance - Revenue and Expenditure (Cat. 68-203) Preliminary 1973, Estimates 1974

Data included in these publications for the territorial and local governments of the Northwest and Yukon Territories have been excluded from the Database, though transfers from the federal government to these entities have not been eliminated.

(b) Modifications

Data for all three levels of government for 1969/70 and for local government for 1970 have been reclassified in accordance with the Canadian System of Government Financial Management Statistics. In a number of cases, particularly at the local level, these reclassifications had to be estimated since the required detailed information on the components of such former functions as "Public Works" was not available.

Estimated data on Federal Government Finance for 1974/75 were updated in the light of the publications issued by the Department of Finance in conjunction with the June 23, 1975 Budget; however, the resulting data included in the Database are to be considered as "preliminary" rather than "actual" since not all special fund data was available, nor was the necessary detail forthcoming in all cases.

Similarly, Statistics Canada provincial data for 1973/74 and 1974/75 have been revised in the light of those provincial Public Accounts which were available for these two years. Here again, not all of the data in the Database are "actual".

(c) Amendments

Changes in classifications made by Statistics Canada for 1970 and subsequent years (normally as a result of better information on the nature of the transactions involved) have been carried back to 1969/70 in all cases.

The Statistics Canada function "Social Welfare" has been re-named "Social Services" and the sub-function "Assistance to disabled, handicapped, unemployed and other needy individuals (including Canada Assistance Plan expenditures)" has been re-titled "Social Welfare". A number of federal and provincial programs classified by Statistics Canada as "Social Welfare" and "Other Social Services" have been assigned to other classifications. Thus, for example, grants to Indians and Eskimos for cultural and economic development have been assigned to "Cultural Facilities and Programs" and "Trade and Industry" respectively. In general, programs with characteristics beyond "mere" welfare have been assigned to classifications more appropriate to those additional characteristics.

A final review in all cases was made to determine any significant remaining anomalies. These were investigated and a number of misclassifications uncovered. These were corrected.

Because the Database has been constructed from a wide variety of sources - Statistics Canada publications, working papers and survey forms, federal and provincial public accounts and departmental reports, financial statements of individual local governments, correspondence, telephone or direct communications with officials in many governments, some variation is to be expected in the quality of the individual statistics we have produced.

Where we have had to rely on estimates - our own or those of others (and this occurred mainly in the early years at the local government level and in the latest years at all levels) - the quality is lower than in those years where final and complete source data were available.

We recognize that the primary purpose of government public accounts is not necessarily to facilitate the production of comparable financial management statistics. At the same time, we note that many improvements in presentation have been made in the relatively short period we have reviewed in detail. But the fact that it was necessary to undertake this exercise indicates that much remains to be done in the field of government financial reporting before the clarity, conciseness, compatibility and comparability of data are achieved which will obviate the need for such work and produce required information promptly.

REFERENCE NOTES

Province of Newfoundland

- Page 579 - Table 163 - line 3: Protection
The Province finances Protection directly through the Newfoundland Constabulary and R.C.M.P. contract.
- Table 163 - line 4: Transportation and Communication
The amount shown represents paving grants to municipalities. The Province builds and maintains roads within most communities.
 - Table 163 - line 5: Health
The Province gives operating and capital grants to privately operated hospitals.
 - Table 163 - line 6: Social Services
The Province is entirely responsible for Social Services.
 - Table 163 - line 7: Education
The Province finances Education through grants to Denominational Education Committees.
 - Table 163 - line 16: Other
Other services are, in the main, provincial responsibilities.

Province of Nova Scotia

- Page 125 - Table 25 - line 87: General Purpose Transfers to local governments.
Special per capita general purpose grants to municipalities amounted to $19.8 million in 1973/74 and $5.3 million in 1974/75.

Province of Manitoba

- Page 369 - Table 98 - line 1: Real and personal property taxes.
Amounts shown are gross of Manitoba property tax credits.
